Grades, Report Cards, Etc...and the Law

Miriam Kurtzig Freedman, M.A., J. D.

...The little law book that explains the requirements that educators, parents and officials need to know—in plain English!

Grades, Report Cards. Etc...and the Law is for people who want to move from confusion to confidence, create legal solutions for better schools, and avoid lawsuits. Like the first book in the series, Student Testing and the Law, this little law book provides practical guidance for educators and parents of all students—including students with disabilities. Topics include:

- Grades and report cards
- Honors
- Class rank and GPAs
- Diplomas and graduation
- And all, in a standards- based era

With this little book, you will learn how to--

- handle the legal requirements for grading, etc. all students.
- know the difference between accommodations and modifications.
- work comfortably with standards with all students and, in particular, students with disabilities.

Attorney Miriam Kurtzig Freedman consults and presents workshops and timely keynotes around the country, filled with creativity, insight and information. She bridges the gap between law and education for people who seek—and work for—better public education for all students.
